

Pauliverse:

Is the most modern, hybrid and electronic music project created by Paolo Fornasier.

Paolo Fornasier (born 9.29.1992) is an Italian composer, pianist and producer.

He demonstrated musical talent already in his earliest days, when he started composing, playing and improvising with music, non having any musical knowledge yet.

He got a Master Degree in piano at the Venice conservatory and in composition in Milan, where he also got a bachelor in Film Music.

Paolo produces many different music genres, from classical to pop, from electronic to piano solo, from film music to songs, and plays his vast repertoire in concerts and events for almost 10 years.

In 2013/14 he attended a film music masterclass with M° Luis Bacalov (Academy Award for best soundtrack 1996), from whom he got a merit diploma.

In 2016 he collaborated as a musician in a video with multi-awarded M° Howard Shore (Lord Of The Rings, Silence Of The Lambs, Mrs Doubtfire. etc.) for the 69° Locarno Film Festival.

Paolo continues working as a soundtracks composer for theatre, short videos, films and media, in parallel with his producer career and concerts.

In 2019 he was invited in Paris for an artist-in residence as a composer at the Italian Cultural Institute, doing concerts in Paris and Lyon.

He thinks that technical-knowledge and music versatility are some of the best qualities a composer should have nowadays, especially if he wants to make music for media.

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Paolo Fornasier'.